The Story of Aunt Becky's Army-life Sarah A. Palmer

Sarah Graham Palmer Young (1830 - 1908) worked as a regimental nurse during the American Civil War. In 1867, she published "The Story of Aunt Becky's Army-Life", an account of her wartime experiences. She married Abel O. Palmer, who died before 1862, and married David C. Young on April 6, 1867, after the Civil War. Palmer left Ithaca on September 3, 1862, following the 109th New York Volunteer Infantry Regiment to Laurel, MD and leaving her two daughters in the care of relatives.

At some point she acquired the nickname "Aunt Becky"; it's not clear if this nickname was applied to her during her civilian life before the American Civil War, or if the nickname was given by her patients or colleagues. One secondary source claims that patients often called her "Mother", a nickname she disliked, and she encouraged using the different nickname after a soldier suggested she looked like his Aunt Becky.

Palmer had kept a full diary of her nursing experiences, but most of the diary was lost, leaving only around three months of material and Palmer's account was therefore largely dictated from memory.

This book originally published by New York Print. Company in 1871 has been reformatted for the Kindle and may contain an occasional defect from the original publication or from the reformatting.
